Euromart says West Bank settlements are 'illegal'

PARIS (AP). - Foreign ministers of the European Common Market yesterday criticized Israel's policy of establishing settlements oo the West Bank of the Jordan River.

In another formal declaration, they urged the immediate creation of an international conference on the Vietnamese refugee problem.

The separate declaration on the Middle East went further than any previous statement by the nine-nation body on the question of Israeli settlements, French Foreigo Minister Jean Francois-Poncet told a news conference here after a oneday political coordination meeting. He added that Jerusaiem was among the other issues discussed, as weil as Rhodesia and Cyprus, but he declined to abed light on the nature of the talks on these points. The dsciaration on settlements

They consider in particular that certain positions or declarations of the Isracli government represent obstacles in the search for a global settlement.'

The declaration specifically noted Israel's claim to the territories occupied since the 1967 war, which the mioistars said was incompatible with UN Security Council Resolution 242, and "the Israeli government's policy of establishing settlements in the occupied territories, illegal according to international law."

The ministers also underscored Lebanon's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity and "deplored any acts regarded as a threat to the security of the population and blocking restoration of the authority of the Lebanese govern-ment over the whole of its territory, notably in the south of the country. This was a clear criticism of Israeli involvement in Southern Lebanon, including eupport for

Lebanese forces opposed to Palestimian activity in the region and direct Israeli iotcrvention in South Lehaooo against Palestinian terrorist bases.

On the question of Vietnamese refugees, the ministers said they would appeal directly to Hanol and other, governments in the region about the situation, which has been made more urgent by Malaysia's recently initiated policy of expelling refugees (see page 4). They added that they would immediately call on the UN High Commissioner for Refugees to convene urgently an international conference "to study with all parties concerned practical solutions to resolve the problem."

The ministers underlined their desire to reinforce and accelerate the international effort to assist the refugees, an effort that until oow has been limited to a small number of countries, the declaration said.

Presidents Carter and Brezhnev exchange copies of the SALT II treaty which they had just signed yesterday in Vienna'e Hofburg (UPI telephoto)

VIENNA (Beuter). - U.S. President Jimmy Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev yesterday ended their first summit meeting by signing a new treaty limiting their strategic missile arsenals - and promptly sealed the agreement with a kiss.

As they shook hands after the signing of the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II), the two leaders surprised the American and Soviet delegations and hundreds of reporters witnessing the ceremony with the unexpected embrace.

Who was the initiator was not completely clear. But after they had kissed each other on each cheek, they stood back, grinning broadly, as applause resounded in the ballroom of Vlenna's 13th century Imperial Palace. (See SALT II, Page 4.)

A joint communique issued at the ead of the four-day summit indirectly confirmed reports from U.S. officials that Carter and Brezhney had falled to narrow disagreements on the Middle East, Africa, Southsast Aela and other world trouble spots.

The two presidents said that during their talks they "Indicated their visws" on their differing approaches. But no mention of progress was made.

U.S. officials sold they were adopting a wait-and-see attitude before deciding if the triumph of SALT II would be foilowed by Soviet actions defusing world tensions and improving overall Soviet-American relations

The presidents disclosed that their governments would hold talks soon with the aim of reopening negotiations on proposals to limit sales of conventional arms to Third World countries, and to reduce armaments in the Indian Ocean. They agreed on the urgency of completing negotiations, which have been going on tor six years between NATO and the Warsaw Pact, for a reduction ot forces and armaments in ceotral Europe.

No progress was recorded in talks to ban space weapons designed to destroy orbiting satellites, but the two presideots said they would continue to search actively for a solution.

One agreement announced in the ique was a ban on the production and use of radiological weapons. A joint proposal is to be presented to the UN 'Disarmament Committee later this year.

The ban will cover radiological weapons which do not involve a nuclear explosion and apparently does not forbid development of the neutron bomh - a nuclear weapon which kills neople without damaging SEATTLE. - U.S. Senator Henry Jackson oo Sunday rejected Russian warnings that changes in the proposed SALT trate would burt Vis. Soviet arms control and could have dangerous consequences for East-West relations and for the world. Appearing on the U.S. ABC televislon network's ''Issues and

U.S. officials said this was a major theme pressed by Carter wheo he compiained to Brezhnev during the summit ebout Soviet and Cuhan military activities in Africa and Moscow's actions in the Middle East and Southeast Asla. The communique dealt only indirectly with Carter's human rights campaign and U.S. legislation forbldding trade credits and tariff concessions to the Soviet Union until Moscow Improvee its treatment of dissidents and eases restrictions on emigration. The two presidents also said they intended to work, along with Britain, for success in negotiations for a total ban on nuclear weapons tests and to cooperate in attempts to stop the spread of nuclear weapons to states that do not have them.

They sald Sovict-American summits were invaluable in the search tor an improved relationship and agreed that they should be held on a regular basis, with specific dates to be dctermined later.

Both Carter and Brezhnev flew home after SALT II was signed.

The 72-year-old Soviet president looked follgued at his departure for Moscow, walking with short, jerky steps which contrasted with his firm and upright galt when he arrived in Vienna last Friday.

His appearance differed sharpiy from that of Carter, 18 years younger, who smlled aod chatted easily with officials and diplomats as he left for Washington.

Both Carter and Brezhnev have described SALT II — which still faces a major hurdle in the U.S. Senate - as a major etep towards curbing the arms race and moving towards all-round disarmament.

SALT II - which will be followed by negotlations on a much broader SALT III - represents the first agreement betweeo the two superowers on actually reducing rather than freezing weaponry - by providing for a reduction of the 2,400 nuclear delivery vehicles permitted each of the two powers to 2,250 by the

"We have got ourselves into an absurd situation where we are subsidizing imports against the interests of our own farmers without budgeting for it," and without a government decision. Farmers say they cannot sell frozeo poultry against competition hy imported beef subsidized by IL20 a kilogram. This subsidy, which has not been approved by the Knesset

Finance Committee, has already cost the treasury soms IL220m. this year, and it is estimated that it will cost ILib. by the end of the year. Rsfrigerated storehouses have been bursting at the seams with un-sold chickens for the past two weeks, and farmers claim there is nowhere for them to store the chicken now being produced. Agriculture Mimister Ariel Sharon supports removal of the imported heef subsidy but other ministers are worried about the effect on the coosumer price index if best prices rise by IL20 per kilogram. With Financs Minister Simcha Ehrlich wavering, though he has said he is opposed to the subsidy in principle, and with other ministers calling for a three-month-long price freeze, the result of a cabinet vote is by no means clear.

New measures to improve conditions in Kiryat Shmona

Post Knesset Reporter

The Ministerial Committee on Development Towns yesterday approved a series of measures design. ed to make living in Kiryat Shmona more attractive. The new measures take effect today.

This was announced in the Knesset yesterday by Industry Minister Gi-deon Patt, who is also chairman of the committee, in reply to three motions for the agenda on an antlelpated "exodus" of Kiryat ona residents. The motions w presented by Melr Pa'il (Sheli), Daniel Rosolio (Alignment) and Amnon Linn (Likud-La'am).

Kiryat Shmona residents iast Wednesday blocked all roads leading to the town in protest against what they termed government neglect.

Henceforth, purchasers of flats in Kiryat Shmona will bave to pay down only 15 per cent of the price,: the balance being covered by loans and grants. Shelters and all other. security components of construction will be paid for by the government. Residents of Kiryat Shmona now.

enjoy a 7 per cent income tax reduction on monthly income up to IL 8,500. Henceforth, the maximum will be II.15,600. In addition, the committee is recommending to the Treasury that Kirvat Shmona residents be entirely exempt from income tax on all income up to the average wage in the economy.

New enterprises established in the 5943 town will receive an additional loan of 10 per cent of total investment. At 20-2 15 8 013 1 present they receive a 35 per cent grant and a 40 per cent loan. The new total of loan and grant will be 85 per cent. Existing enterprises in Kiryat Shmona will be eligible for loans on good terms.

Patt also announced that Prime Minister Menahem Begin will visit Kiryat Shmona next week. He said that while every family that eban dons the town is cause for regret, it was not true that there was danger of "a mass exodus."

Dayan won't resign from autonomy team

But 'personally' thinks it's too big

Post Diplomatie Correspondent Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said yesterday that he did bot intend to drop out of the ministerial negotiating team on the autonomy. The team, following the departure of Defence Minister Ezer Weizman on Sunday, now numbers fly; ministere. Dayan told a luncheon of the Foreign Press Association that in his "personal opinion" there chould be a smaller delegation actually doing the negotiating with the the three Egyptian ministers (Khalil, Ali and Ghali) and the American delegates. But this would have to be a cabinet decision," Dayan noted. Weizman left the team, according to his spokesman, because he felt lt was too big and unwieldy.

Both Weizman and Dayan have expressed reservations over the "internal guidelines" and the 18-point list of principles formulated by the cabinet three weeks ago to guide the negotiators.

Chief negotiator Yosef Burg complained yesterday to the prime minister that Weizman's resignation and Dayan's equivocal attitude were undermining the Israell team. Meanwhile, the negotiations will resume tomorrow at Herzliya, on the level of "experts," in an attempt to make progress on the agenda for the talks. Three Egyptien officials, Foreign Ministry men Moussa Amr and Ibrahim Wahbi and an army colonel, are due here this morning for the two days of talks. The U.S. contingent will be led by Stato Department Israel Desk chief David Korn. Israel's representatives will he Dr. Meir Rosenne, the Foreign Minietry's legal aide, and hie euceessor-designate, Prof. Ruth Lapidot.

Rosenne and Lapidot met with Interlor Minleter Yoeef Burg, Israel's negotiating chief yesterday for a briefing hefore the "experts" session.

Israel eent its formal reply yester day to the American "elarification" regarding the U.S. role in the autonomy talks. The Israeli reply contained a number of reservations on wording used in the American document.

· But. overall, top Israeli sources stressed, the U.S. document, drafted by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, had "fully endorsed" the Israeli viewpoint: that the U.S. was to be a "full partner" in the talks — but not a "party," either in the talks, or to the eventual agreement, or in its implementation.

At a negotiating eession in Alexan-dria last week, the Egyptian side contended that the U.S. should take a more active role in the autonomy talks, and in the implementation of the eventual agreement, than It bad done during the treaty talks between Israel and Egypt. Israeli negotiators immediately balked at this Egyptian position - and asked for a elarification" from the U.S. The Americans epparently see their "elarification" as even-handed and not necessarily "endorsing" Israel's or Egypt's viewpoint exclusively.

Sandinistas seize Leon, control 2 other cities

MANAGUA (AP). - Sandinista rebels yesterday eeized control of Leon, Nicaragua's second largest city, and were reported in virtual con-trol of two other major northern towns. Fighting with National Guardsmen continued in the south, and the rebels held large parts of the capital, Managua.

Witnesses said the guerrillas moppsd up the last remaining National Guard troops in Leon and controlled most of Chinandega and Chichigalpa. President Anastasio Somoza met nearly around the clock with senior military aidee in his fortified bunker. in Managua. Government sources said he was studying how to deal with the deteriorating situation.

The fail of the garrison in Leon, 88 km. north of the capital, isolated government forces in a small fort on the outskirts, from which they continued to loh mortar chells into Leon. Some guardsmen tried to flee in their underwear as the command post fell oo Sunday. Doctors at the social security hospital, one block from the downtown command post, said other guardsmen demanded at gunpoint that they turn over patlente' gowne and doctors' clothing. Leon controls the main highway to Chichigalpa and Chinandega and to Corinto, the country's Pacific port. The area bas been cut off from telephone communications for more than a week, but refugees reported heavy fighting in Chichigalpa and Chinandega, with rebels in control of most of those cities and the local guard garrisons bottled up in their command posts.

On the diplomatic front Somoza, whose family have ruled for over 40 years, suffered another setback as Ecuador became the third country to withdraw diplomatic recognition of Nicaragua. Mexico and Costa Rica have already done so.

Yesterday five South American countries - all members of the Andean Pact — announced they had formally recognized the Sandinista guerrillas as combatants fighting on the same footing as Somoza's men. The countries are Venezuela, Colomhia, Peru, Ecuador, and Bolivia, All except Ecuador still recognize Somosa'e government. Meanwhile, a stream of families of government officials was fleeing the country, most of them to Miami in the U.S., on the Lanica Airlines flight, the only commercial company flying in and out of the Managua airport. Lanica belongs to the Somozy family. (AP, Reuter)

Although small, the beach is delightful, eet in the anelent harbour with Roman and Crusader walls all around. A semi-enclosed bay assures the bathing area of calm water and an expanse large enough to eatisfy all but the most energetle swimmers.

Even the people are bsautiful here and anyone wanting a good reason to go on a diet would do well to visit Caesarea's beach regularly. In any ease, a visit is a way of living like a lord for a reasonable fee. The only item that costs more than usual is the restaurant, which does not exactly charge bargain prices. On the other hand, with a pienie lunch, even that problem can be overcome.

IL7.50 (Shabbot IL10 surcharge). clean. no tor, changing oreas, shade. no chairs, kiosks.

This is the beach to put Tel Aviv to shame — if indeed anyone in Tel Aviv still cares. Haifs has proved that a very large beach, serving a densely populated area, can be elean and pleasant. Everything here is on a giant seale, the changing rooms and ehowere, the kloaks, and finally the eandy area which stretebes for dunams. In short, there is room for everyone.

Divided into small bay areas, the sea bere ie elean. Additional lifeguards and bathing space are available for particularly crowded days. Large round shady coverings dot the eand, and there are cemen paths to protect hathers' feet from ths hot sand.

For those who feel they cannot afford the entrance fee, there is a free beach to the south, but it is narrow, erowded and not very elean. But even at the free beach. Haifa providee reasonable changing facilities and toilets. Three cheers for Haifs.

much in life from various people, including the mullaha (religious leaders). She wanted me to go to school and be modern.

Told that only a few kilometres away, across the border in Iran, the Ayatoliah Ruholiah Khomeini is telling woman to go back to thair vells, Mrs. Iskenderova exclaimed: "Hah! It will never happen here."

A western visitor hears that sentiment expressed often by church, party and government officials in Azerbaijan. "Our believere have lived for 50 years in a situation and atmosphere of which they had dreamt for thousands of years," said Hajji Allokhshukur Pashayev, deputy chair-man of a Moslem religious board in nearby Baku. 'Therefore, I rule out completely the possibility that Iranian events will have any influence on our Moslems."

Such statements are expected from officials here, evenfrom Moelem leadere, who have been called this most submissive of the church leaders in the Soviet Union, which is officially atheistic.

Still, foreign diplomats and journalists who have visited the Moelem republics of the Soviet Union since last winter have failed to find any svidence that would contradict the official view. If there is any spillover here of Iranian-style Islamie nationalism or separatism, it is neighbours to the south, not with the Slavs of the north. Even today, not one Azerbaijani in five is finent in Russian. And many of their customs, whether they are believers or not, follow Islamic teachings.

The nearly 4 million Soviet Azerbaijanis have particularly close ties with Iran because there are more Azerbaijanis, perhaps 10 million, in Iran than in Azerbaijan.

Soviet power has consolidated here after the Russian civil war in the 1920s: Historically, Moelems in this part of the world had been hostile to the Russians of the north. The feeling was mutual. The Christian crosses that adorn many Russian Orthodox churches today have a crescent near the foot, supposedly signifying the superiority of the Orthodox faith over Islam.

While It allows the Moslem faith to function in a limited way, the Kremlin continues to propagandise against Moslems just as it does against other religious groups "Islam is a weapon of feudal oppression in Moslem states," declares a sign in a museum of atheism in Samarkand in Soviet Central Asia.

To Communist ideologues, Islam is "anti-scientific." 'anti-social," "conservative" and shot through with Mustapha Khalil's eight-month old oabinet yosterday tendered its resignation to President Anwar Sadat in the wake of last week's general elections in which Sadat's ruling party won a massive victory. Dr. Khalil, was immediately asked to form the new cabinet.

Consultations are expected to last two days after which Khalil will present his new cabinet to Sadat for approval in timo for next Saturday'e inauguration of the now people's assembly (parliament) - the first to. be elocted under a multi-party system in more than 27 years.

Defence Minister Kamal Hassan All is likely to retain his post in the new cabinet, and Khalil is expected ter ne to keep the post of Foreign Minister.

There is wide-spread speculation that Hassan Kamel, a former amhassador to Greece and chairman of the foreign affairs committee in the ruling National Democratic Party (NDP) will become Egypt's new foreign minister:

Khalil's outgoing cabinet was

EGYPTIAN PRIME Ministor formed in October last year, following the Camp David accords between Egypt and Israel which paved the way for the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty signed in March and the curront Paleetinian autonomy talks.

One of the most immediate and arduous tasks of the new cabinet willbe to try to improve the economic situation. The left-wing Unionist Progressive Party (UPP) - strident in Its. opposition to Sadat'e domestic and foreign policies - lost the two seats It held in the outgoing parliament. UPP leader Khaled Mohleddin has charged that Sadat wanted the new parliament free of any real opposition in case the peace treaty failed to bring about the hoped for economic and other benefits.

The UPP has accused the government of rigging the elections - an accusation the government strongly denies. All former deputies who opposed the peace treaty, as well as other ception - Momtaz Nassar, a former judge who stood as an independent. Out of the 343 seats officially announced so far, the NDP won 302, the Socialist Labour Party (SLP) 29, the Liberal Socialist Party (LSP) three and the independents nine. The main difference between the NDP and SLP campaign platforms defeated in the elections with one ex-

was their approach to the public and private sectors. The NDP wants to give equal opportunities to the two tors, while the SLP favours a bigger role for the public sector. Out of the remaining 49 seats outstanding 16 will be filled by Sadat's personal appointees and 30 are reserved for women.

The remaining nine ceats are divided between constituencies where there are re-runs because of irregularitice, constituencice in Sinal where elections were delayed since part of the territory was only returned by Israel last month, and one constituency in Cairo whose result is expected later today. In candidates known for their opposimost of these constituencies two tion to Sadat's peace overtures wereseats are at stake. (Reuter)

By THOMAS KENT TEERAN. - Four months after the Islamic revolution, Iran's foreign relations are turbulent. The new regime now stands on shaky ground with both its smaller neighbours and has just accused one bordering country. Iraq, of bombing its villages. Diplomate in Tehran believe that Iran is more isolated diplomatically now than at any time during the Shah's reign. Still, they ackowledge that the new government has moved toward better ties with some countrise, including several Talamic nations and the non-aligned bloc.

The reported Iraqi air raids against four Iranian villagee last week raises the prospect of renewed trouble hetween Bagbdad and Tehran, which patched up earlier quarrels in 1974.

On Iran's eastern border, relations are tense with Afghanistan. Afghani President Nur Mohammed Taraki, with Soviet military support, is attempting to put down a rebellion by Moslem guerrillas in what some Iranians see as a replay of their own revolution against the U.S.supported Shah.

relations with Israel. South Africa and Egypt since the February revolution. It has also pulled out of its Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) alliance with Pakistan, Turkoy, Britain and the United States. As a replacement for CENTO, it is negotiating for memherehip in the non-aligned movement.

Iran's credentials for being nonaligned include cool relations with both superpowers. Iran'e religious leaders continue to unleash strident anti-Communist rbetorie against Moscow and Iran's own leftists, despite Moscow's early support for the Khomeini regime.

Iran'e relations with the U.S. have been on edge einco a U.S. Senate resolution last month condemned Iranian revolutionary courte. Although U.S.-Iranian trade has picked up again since the revolution, Iran is delaying the arrival of a new U.S. ambassador in Tehran.

Relations with Iraq may prove to be Iran'e most dolicate regional prohlem. Iraq gave chelter to Khomeini from 1965 to 1978 but expelled him under pressure from the Shah's government.

Iran and Iraq are entangled in ethnic problems. Both countries have sizeable ethnic Kurdish populations, and diplomats cay Iraq foars unrest among Kurde if Iranian Kurds succeed in their negotiation with the Tehran govornment for local autonomy.

For its part, Iran, whose Moslems are mainly of the Shilte hranch of Islam, is concerned for the welfare of minority Shiites in Iraq.

Iranian state radio reported increased border activity by Ireqi troope during the Khuzestan lighting, a claim that Iraq denied. Diplomate douht that the Iraqi government is directly arming Iranian Arebs, but they say Baghdad may be turning a blind cye to supply missions organized by the Arabs' individual Iraqi sympathizers.

Iranian relations appear to be holding steady with some other Moelem nolghboure, including Pakistan, Turkey, the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arahia. The government bas dieavowed the Shah'e commitment to police the Persian Gulf, reducing the prospect of Iranian military intervention in the Emiratee in a future crisis. But there is still little sign of the kind of unity between Iran and other Islamic nations of which Khomeini bad dreamed. In February, he was quoted as teiling a Kuwaiti delegation that he "hoped" all Islamic nations ecattered around the world and standing in opposing lines against each other duc to foreigners' adverse propaganda will awaken soon to form a great Islamic government under one Islamic flag, a nation that would dominate the whole world.

Tehran'e ties with Egypt, one of the most populous Moslem countrles, aro now non-cxietent. Relations with Libya appear to be stalled over the disappearance of an Iranian-born Lehances Moelem leader, Imam Mousa Sadr. wbo vanished following a visit to Libya last year.

Other Islamic countries, such as Turkey, give religion a far smaller role in the government affairs than Ielam has had so far in revolutionary Iran.

All these issues must be settled before an Islamic super-state can develop. For the moment, Iran appoare too preoccupied by problems with the superpowers and on its borders. (AP)

Non-aligned foreign ministers: Egypt won all but last round

EGYPT. UNDER heavy fire in the Arab world for making peace with Israel, won every round except the last at a get-together of the nonaligned movement in Sri Lanka last week. That was the verdict of many delegates assessing the confron-tations that occurred behind closed doors among the foreign ministers of the non-aligned coordination bureau. Egypt managed to bold in abeyance its susension from the movement that it belped found 18 years ago, and it oscaped overt riticism in the final declaration of the meeting. But Egypt and its backers lost a tough, all-night fight to keep the Camp David treaty from being condemned for the first time in official documents of the movement of 88 countries and political organizations.

The upshot is that a statement of the foreign ministers, condemning the treaty as a violation of previous. U.N. resolutions, is expected to find its way into future resolutions of the General Assembly, where nonaligned countries command a majority of votes. This will add to the already formidable difficulties of expanding. Camp David into a Middle Eastern settlement, diplomats predicted

Egypt, Peru, Zaire, Liberia, na, Cameroon, Senegal and Botaw some other African and Asian countries have either filed or plan to file reservations with the Sri Lankan secretariat about the "violation" statement that the Sri Lanks chairman, Foreign Minister A.C.S. Hameed, gavelled into the declaration. He said its inclusion was justified on grounds it was part of the final consensus. Those present at the final closed easion said Hameed, determined to adjourn, overruled all objection and demand for further debate, advising vations within two weeks. The move ment operates on consensus without voting. Some participants called it a "tilt"

In the private eector. the foreign businessman must understand that sooner rather than later be will have to find a sponsor - and this is largely a matter of picking your man. A name that rolls off the tongue is Laing Wimpey Alireza, a joint venture hetweon the British construction giant and one of Jeddah'e most respected merchant families which has won, among other valuable deals, important defence contracts. Investment law in Saudi Arabia is a martiage of the Koran and traditional Sunna: on the one hand (the best-known legalistic principle #### of which is that interest is banned as usury, while nominal "commission" may be charged) and modern royal decrees on the other. The latter are adapted to business requirements and are much the more important in this respect. There is a variety of formal and semi-formal business arrangements, including variable-

capital companies, but partnerships and unincorporated "joint ventures" are the most common between foreign entrepreneur and Saudi sponsor.

Incorporation involves a fairly complicated official administrative process, but five-yoar tax holidaye, real estate benefits and other incentives are available where the Saudi has at least a 25 per cent capital interest. Quasi-legal agency agreements may also enjoy conelderable benefits, including tax holldays, depending on the equity of the Saudl sponsor. However, It is absolutely essential in all cases that both sides understand mutually what is meant by "profit" on which commission will be paid.

Forms of income and company taxes, plus a small religious tax, are levied and all imports except construction materials and foodstuffs are taxed unless there is a special exemption. Foreign workers in Saudi Arabia are no longer liable to personal income tax.

Life on the ground for the foreign businesseman is becoming lese arduous than it was as recently as a couple of years ago as hotel accommodation becomes more plentiful and communications Improve. But in a wider ephere the foreigner in Saudi Arabia will etill hoar anxious public dehate about undesirable 'outsido influences."

Paulina won't play in Wimbledon tryout

By JACK LEON Poat Sports Reporter

TEL AVIV. --- Local tennis star Paulina Peled is not participating in this week's qualifying tournament in Roshampton, London for the upcoming Wimhladon champlonships. Peled, 29, participated in four of the last five championship meets, on each oceasion being Israel's sole representativa.

Peled went straight into the main Wimbledon draw in 1974 - when she was ranked 19th in the world - and in 1975. After missing the next tournament for personal reasons, she was twice askad to qualify because of lack of good results in International competition, doing so successfully on each occasion at the tremendously tough Rochampton

Lithuanian-born Peled said yesterday that she had not been able to find the time for the essential several weeks of acelimatization training in England in preparation for Rochampton.

"But I have no intention of retiring yet," said Peled, who is at present coaching at the Tel Aviv Happel club. She hoped to have another try at Wimbledon next year, and, in the meantime, is keen to compete in the U.S. Open in Naw York in August for the fifth straight year. No Israell man has played at Wimbledon since Elazar Davidman some 15 years ago, and Peled's absence means that this country will not he represented at the ooming championships starting on Juns 25.

Lord Bethell, to give him his correct title, was naturally flattered by Begin's praise, the more so eince his book is not uncritical of the former Irgun leader. Begin in fact was one of the many people Betheli interviewed in his research into the period.

The essence was that early generations of Israelis had a double language problem: the language was both new to them and was being revived. Many words still had to be invented. The frustration of being unable to

Collection goes to Pretoria U. Major art gift raises questions

By CHARLES BLOOMBERG/Johannesburg

A pricelese art collection possibly including work belonging to Jewish victims of the Holocaust hae heen accepted by Pretoria University from convicted Dutch wartime collahorator Jacohus Abraham van Tilburg.

The university says it is satisfied. that none of the art treasures were owned by Jewe or improperly obtained. But it has declined to let the press examine certificates of origin or purchase.

The university describes the collection as "one of the largest private art collections in the world Brought from Holland In 1951, It is worth hetwsen $2-6m. Van Tilburg, a Dutch right-winger, held office during the Nazi occupation of Holland as Dordrecht's alderman. Now aged 90, he came to South Africa 25 years ago, telling "The Haagsche Post" that he was a strong supporter of South Africa's Nationalist Party and had highly placed friends in the country. "I love South Africa and want to dic here.'

It was Pretoria University's unilateral exoncratico of Van Tilburg of any impropriety in amassing it that revived controversy about the origin of the multi-million dollar collection. The university is a noted centre of right-wing and racist views and its last principal — Prof. C.H. Rauten-hauch — had been a general in the pro-Nazi, anti-Semitic, para-military Afrikaner organization, the Ossawa Brandwag. The present principal, Prof. E. Hamman, has attempted to allay Jewish concern by promising to return art works to their rightful owners if title can he proved. But the onus of proof lies largely with people who perished in the crematoria. Doubts about the collection were first given public utterance in 1977 when Van Tilburg announced his intention of making it over to the university. A joint investigation by Johanneehurg and Amsterdam newspapere turned up eerlous charges against him from former members of the Dutch resistance, one-time Dordrecht husineee assoclates, and even members of war-crimes trihunals. Van Tilhurg, they said, had worked with the Nazi administration; he had also secretly accepted valuables for safe-keeping from fleeing Jews, but had not returned them all after the war. His accusers say that both his wealth and the substantial additions to his personal art collection date from the war years. Former resistance fighters and Jewish survivors insiet he obtained Jcwich goods improperly during the war; if is multi-million dollar collection which contains Jewish portraits was not obtained directly from Jews, It was bought with "hlood money." they claim. After the war, Van Tilburg was imprisoned for four months on a collaboration charge and the Queen's Commission stripped him of his pension rights because of his conduct during the occupation.

BUT VAN TILBURG says, "I know where every single Item in the collection comes from. They were all acquired before the war. None of the ltems was given to me hy Jewish families fleeing the Nazis. They were bought from private collectors at auction salce and from various dealers." He has also claimed that his collection was "the most important in Holland" even before the war. Other accusations that he profited from Jewish misfortuncs have come from:

Esther Stiel Schmulewitz, who has said she gave him 12,000 guilders In 1942 — hut later received only a smell fraction hack;

• Wolf Bienstock, now in Israel, who has eaid he and his family left valuable carpets in Van Tilhurg's safekeeping. "We all believed Van safckeeping. "Wc all believed Van Tliburg. We thought him an honourable man who could be trusted with our valuables."

Ferez Wang, a former business associate, who has said he gave Van Tilburg diamonds which were not returned after the war; Wang sued Van Tilhurg, hut lost his case.

Van Tilburg'e collection fills overy room of his rambling Pretoria mansion. It includes a small Rembrandt, worth hundreds of thousands of dollars; 100 paintings by the Italian watsrcolour master Falzon1 believed to be the largest single collection of his work anywhere; a rare full set of 5 familie rose plates, painted in the Casius technique with crushed rubice and other gems - one of only three examples of this work in the world; one room filled with 2,400 hlue porcelain pleces, including Ming and Delft ware; and 3,000 graphic Represented here is the entire history of Dutch painting from the seventeenth to the twentleth conturies. But it may also represent the anguich of Dutch Jewry In the Holocaust — there were 140,000 Jews in Holland at its outset, an estimated 106.000 perished.

children and orphans of World War I was recalled in a perhaps not entire-ly unrelated feature on Kfar Yeladim, broadcast a day later.

Kiar Yeladim is hy now an all but forgotten place, just north of Afula and now incorporated into the "upper" quarter of that town.

The story concerned the odyseey of Israel Belkind and 160 orphans. Perhaps Belkind did rescue the youngsters from a worse fate. As the story was told it did, however, etrike me as the unparalleled irresponsibility of a man obsessed by an Idea. Collecting the children and hringing them to safety inside Poland was a good thing. But bringing them to Palestine in the early 20s, and hiring some of them out to the farmers of Hadera ("where some of them died") and later to Rosh Pina seems, to me, to have been criminal. I may be doing Belkind a grave injustice since I am going only by the story as lt was recorded on Kol Yisrael.

Technology '79 reflects Israel's industrial growth

By JOSEPH MORGENSTERN Jerusalem Post Finance Reporter TEL AVIV. - "The potentialities for industrial development must be surveysd and harnessed hy the State as one of the supreme tasks... We have a mighty weapon which we must utilizs with ingenuity and skill, with every means available to us. Science is that weapon, our vessel of strength and our source of defence," stated Chaim Weizmann, Israel's first president and a scientist in his own right.

The statement was made 30 years ago and today with the opening of Technology '79, the international trade fair, some $50 Israeli companiss out of a total of nearly 1,400 will be showing products. In many cases the products are the product of local ingenuity and research and development.

Technology '79 is by far the most important and largest international professional event to take place in this country. A reflection of the importance of this international trade fair is that no fewer than 20 countries are participating, a third more than those who attended the fair beld some two years ago. All of the exhibition huildings available at the Tel Aviv Fair Grounds are being utilized, more than 18,000 square metres. Another 3,500 metres of outdoor space is also being used for exhibition purposes.

Nine sountries are appearing officially at Technology '79. They ars Austria, Australia, Italy, the U.S., Belgium, Britain, Wast Germany, France and Canada. Each of these sountries will have its own national exhibition building. This will mark the first one that Canada is appearing as the tschnology fair. The Onterlo Ministry of Industry and Tourism inltiated and organized Canada's participation.

Heading the 50 strong Canadian delegation is Ontario'e Minister of Inductry and Tourlam, The Honorahls Larry Grossman. Cana-dian offisials bave indicated that ths visiting exhibitors are anxious to develop trade and know-how ties with their Israeli counterparts.

Three totally new areas of industrial endeavour will he exhibited for the first tims. These are security devices, work tools and anylliary tools primarily for uss in workshop industries and systems and the whole area of energy utilization and preservation. Security devices whether against fire or theft or industrial process control have become ever more important on the industrial scene. Awareness of the need to protect the production line worker from aocidents on the joh has been the basis of highly specialized products ranging from the very mundane sye goggiss to protection from radiation. On display will be products and systems to protect industrial plants from theft and the dangers of fire. Complete communisations systems which allow management strict supervision of all areas of production can also heen seen.

One of the products of local ingenuity is the new sprinkler-type fire extinguisher produced by the local Alshem Ltd. The management describes the new pisse of equipment as a "spot extinguisher" intended primarily for specific area fire control. It has a small container, the size of a watermelon, and it can be easily positioned around such expensive equipment as generators and transformers.

Alehem is beet known for its "pocket fire extinguishers." In 1978 the company's sales ross from ILSm. to IL15m. Last year the sompany made initial exports of $70,000 while this year It has already passed the $100.000 mark.

Work and auxillary tools presented are epecifically engineered for the small or medium-sized factory. The underlying con-cept behind this exhibition is the assumption that the small factory owner may be less knowledgeahls about innovations in the tool field. The most up-to-date equipment, from all parts of the world will he on display and available commercially. Israel has assumed, in recent years, a prominent position internationally, in the solar energy field. Companies euch as Miromit, Amcor and others have successfully exported solar energy collectors to various parts of the world. At the Waizmann Institute, accelerated basic research is being carried out in various facets of energy - solar, chemical and biological. Profaesor I. Dostrowsky, an isotope specialist, for example, is working on selective coatings which may bring about a marked improve-ment in the effectiveness of solar collectors. Another research project. holding great commercial promise, is headed by Professor G. Yskutiel and deals with the concentration of solar energy through the use of cylindrical mirrors.

The schiblts cover nearly all aspacts of industrial endeavour however, not less than 264 firms will bs showing machines and s quipment associated with the metal working field and another. 158 firms are specialists in measuring and industrial control equipment. While teshnology '79 offers an outstanding opportunity for local producers to exhibit their various products for the benefit of local industry as well as the many overseas visitors, the fact that three out of avery four exhibitors are from outside of Israel is a reflection of the industrial growth of this country as well as its having become a consumer of sophistisated and advanced squipment.

Canadians leaders visit trade fair

Jerusalem Post Beporter TEL AVIV. - In conjunction with Canada's first participation in the technology trade fair, the Canada-Israel Chamber of Commerce is acting as host to a group of Canadian husiness, industry and community leaders.

In a week-long stay the visitors will meet with their counterparts in Israsl. A highlight of the visit will be a meeting with Prime Minister

Menshem Begin. Leading the group will be Lou Ronson, president of the Canada-Israsl Chamber of Commerce and president of the Work Wear Corporation of Canada, a major producer of work slothing. Hie other sommunity dutics inslude the presidency of B'nai B'rith, Canada. Scheduled to assume the presidency of the Chamber in September of this year is Phil Granovsky, well known Canadian industrialist and world chairman of the Keren

Hayesod. The trade delegation numbers some 35 individuals while another 10 cxhihitors will he preesnt at Technology. The visitors have expressed interest in hldding on the Some-Ellat railroad project which is estimated to hs in the order of $300m. If they are successful, the Canadian government will provide the required financing for the project. Also, part of the group is Tho Eaton, national vice-president of the Eaton Department store chain, the hest known shain of Its type in Canada. He is joined by Douglas Bassett, president of Baton, one of Canada'e large broadsasting sorporations. Bassett's father is remambered as being one of the founders of the Herzliya television and film studios. Montague Black, another member of the group, heads the Argus, a major investment company in Canada.

Technology may be fine for most of the world, but it doesn't impress Michael Tetashvill, a butcher in Jerusalem's Mahane Yehuda market. Tetashvill, who came to Israel from Soviet Georgia five years ago, brought his abacus with him. He says that it is easier to use and more accurate than a calculator. (Nelson)

Jerusalem Post Reporter HAIFA. — "Israel'e industry must change over from fuel oil to coalfired energy because it may become impossible for us to supply all the fuel oil needs, at whatever price," the shief scientist of the Energy Ministry, Prof. Arthur Shavit, said last week. ' The change to coal is imperative. however great the difficulties, he stressed.

Speaking at a workshop on the prohlems of replacing oil with coal in industry, which was held by the Teshnlon's Samuel Neaman Institute, Shavit said the experts agreed on the urgent need to switch from oil to coal. But "psychological and concrets difficulties" must etill be overcome.

Hs noted that the priss was already right, with steam produced from coal now costing only one-half of oil-fired steam, while oil prices are still rising. The coal bandling difdiculties will be largely solved when the Electric Corporation completee its big soal terminal at the new Hadera power plant.

Technion's mechanical engineering faculty, who presented a preliminary report on the subject to the workshop, noted that industry. had shown no interest in the subject established no contacts and sent no representative to the workshop, though they had been invited. This was despite the fact that after the Electric Corporation, industry would be the chief user of coal in future, he 'said.

The experts agreed that the coal hurning need not pollute the environment, thanks to modern techniques. as had been proved in Britain. The problam of coal ash has also been solved, as the ash is now in high demand as a building raw material. In Israel coment manufacturers, who would be first in line for coal burning, could uss the ash for making cement. Burning soal would also reduce sulphur dioxide emission from samentworks by up to two thirds. This would drastically cut the cement industry's worst pollutant leffect.

Argentines tell Patt how to cut inflation 11 1979

By SHOLOMO MAOZ. Post Economic Reporter

Argentine economic experts, here for bilateral talks on trade with Israel, yesterday explained to their hosts bow Argentina's inflation rate was cut from a 1976 high of 300 per cent to a current 140 per cent; Juan Estehan Du Mas, the head of the Argentine delegation, explained to host Minlatar of Industry, Commerce and Tourism Gideon Patt that liks Israel, Argentina suffered from instficient industrial produstion as a result of a 100 per cent sustoms tarriff that acted as a trads barrier to protect local production. But the Argentine government's policy now is to reduce tariffs to 15 per cent during the next five years. Currently, a 30 per sent tariff still acts in an inflationary manner, Esteban explained.

The Argentinians legislated a minimum wage act to guarantee a decent salary, and prices have been stabilized on basic commodities, in an inflation fighting move, the quest explained. While in 1976 Argentina had a $1h trads defisit, it now has a

$2.4h. surplus. Unsmployment is a relatively low 1.8 per cent, and the foreign currency reserves of the Latin American Sountry have reached $5b., from a 1976 low of only $26m. Esteban told his hosts that un-derdevslopsd countries ars not promoting enough trade amongst each other, prefering to rely on im-ports from industrialized countries. resulting in higher costs to un. derdeveloped vations. Patt also heard Esteban ask Israel for advice in irrigation techniques, solar energy technology and food processing, while Estehan heard Patt sall for increased trads between the two countries.

Patt recommended that Israel be tenders, and promised that Argen-ting could exploit the new market situation that will evolve in the Hiddie East as the peace treaty with Egypt is implemented. Calls for long-term trade relations instead of random trade were also made during the Jarnealem meeting.

Top Treasury expert hits gov't spending

By ALAN ELSNER erusalem Post Beporter

TEL AVIV. - Prof. Assaf Razin, a senior economic advisor in the Treasury, yesterday launched a violent attask on government overspending, which bs termed, "the number one cause of inflation." Razin beade the Transury'e Economie Planning Authority. He was speaking at the opening of an international conference at Tel Aviv University under the auspicee of the Pinhas Sapir Development Centre on "development in an inflationary esonomy." He sharged "Ministers overspend in order to increase their personal popularity and political clout, without bearing the ultimate interests of the state in mind." A partisular target for Razin's sritisiem was the Edusation Ministry. 'The decision to make education free to all sectors of the population was a regreeelve measure designed to win political eapital at the expense of the Israeli economy," Razin said.

Shares mixed while financials gain

Commercial and mortgage bank shares continued to advance yesterday as other sectors in the share market turned mixed. Trading continued to he on the active side as more than IL 120m. changed hands.

It now appears that, at least over the near term, we are in for favourable market conditions as more companies get on the exchange bandwagon to raise new funds.

In the case of the commercial banks, who will be tapping the market for massive sums, it is critically important that a favourable trading atmosphere prevail until the upderwriting offers are completed. Under other than existing circumstances it would have been expected that yesterday there occur some profit-taking in the wake of a week where prices advanced sharply. As it was, with a few exceptions, offers were picked up te: at only nominally lower price levels.

Leumi, Hapoalim and Mizrahi continued to dominate trading activity in the commercial bank group. Each of the shares gained two points in extremely active trading. Misrahi and Leumi accounted for nearly ILism. of the total turnover recorded by shares. IDB was be one better while Union Bank rose by five the points to 894. FIBI rose by three but General Bank was held unchanged.

SALT II: The debate begins

THE SALT II treaty signed yesterday in Vienna by Presidents Carter and Brezhnev is far from a satisfactory instrument for reducing the probability of nuclear warfare between the two super-powers.

It is also far from satisfactory from the point of view of America's weight in the new strategic balance. Many of the treaty's American framers and supporters admit as much.

National Security Adviser Brzezinski has been frank in stating that "SALT TWO is not a panacea. It will not end the arms race ... But (it is) a crucial part of a long, mutual effort to impose a framework of rationality on Soviet-American competition and to lessen the dangers posed by weapons of mass destruction.'

Secretary of State Vance speaks of the treaty as recognition of the change that has occurred "from an earlier period of American strategic supremacy to an era of stable strategic equivalence.

The critical question that will be the focus of debate in the U.S. Senate which must ratify the treaty, is whether failure to conclude this treaty package would be worse than signing it.

The details of the treaty are so complex as to make it impossible for the intelligent laymen, and for most experts for that matter, to render clear judgement on that question. In such a situation it would be normal to expect a people to line up behind its highest leaders - in this case the president, secretary of defence, secretary of state, and national security adviser - and accept their considered approval of the treaty.

Yst stiff opposition has arisen to the treaty in the American political and defence communities and in the Senate. This reflects an erosion in public confidence, not only in President Carter, but in all governmental authority eince the twin shocks of Vietnam and Watergate earlier in the decade.

One of the issues of contention in the American debate concerns the ability to detect possible Soviet cheating on the strategic weapons limitations set in the treaty. It is interesting that there seems to be no equivalent concern on the part of the Soviets in regard to the possibility of American cheating.

Partly this is due to Soviet confidence that they can learn all they want to know about U.S. efforts because America is an open society - some would say foolhardy open society. There is also room for such Soviet equanimity in the realization that American leaders feel themselves much more squeezed by budgetary pressures than do the autocrats of the Kremlin. The American people, the Soviets believe, can be expected to limit U.S. strategic expansion unless the Kremlin does something stupid enough to shock Americans into a renewed arms race.

It is also difficult to know why Mr. Carter was so intent on concluding the treaty at this time. Mr. Brezhnev is obviously not going to remain in office much longer and meanwhile the identity of his successors and their attitudes on detente and the SALT treaties remain unclear, to say the least.

Of particular interest to the Middle East will be the possible spin-offs from the Carter-Brezhnev summit in Vienna. It is believed that Mr. Carter may have pressed his Soviet counterpart for a Soviet commitment to reduce tensions with the U.S. and with American allies and clients in the Middle East, the Horn of Africa, southern Africa, and Iran and Afghanistan.

IN SEARCH OF A FUTURE

"The Liberals are miffed at finding themselves convenient whipping boys for the government's failures," writes Post Political Correspondent MARK SEGAL, who explains why the party is facing a dual crisis of leadership and ideology.

THE RECENT Jerusalem Post poll that found that only one in every even Likud voters would choose the Liberal Party if it decided to go it alone has hardly improved the mood of the junior Likud partner.

It has certainly confirmed the suspicions voiced by prominent Herut politicians that the Liberals have become "hitch-hikers," with even less charitable commentators charging that the party that brought Herut out of the slums and into respectable bourgeois salons no longer has a viable constituency.

Some months ago former Liberal Party chairman Elimelech Rimalt spoke mournfully of his party's prospects. If no change were made, he cast doubts on its chances for survival as an independent entity. Indeed, at one point, he wondered out loud whether the heirs of General Zionism had become just another wing of the Revisionist Movement. Rimalt expected that other forces rould fill the vacuum in the centre of the political stage as Herut procesd-ed to gobble up the Liberal remnants. While not saying it in so many words, Dr. Rimalt implied that it all came down to leadership, and that much of the blame must be horne by the party's leader, Finance Minister Simha Shritch.

Talking with some Liberal politicians recently, I parceived how far Rimalt's pessimism has spread. They tend to make unfavourable comparisons between the situation when Dr. Rimalt enjoyed equal status with Menahem Begin as cochairman of the Likud in opposition and Ehrlich's junior standing alongside Premier Begin. They see the present situation as a function of his weak performance as party leader and as a minister.

In Liberal circles, one hears the word crisis too often for comfort's sake. They speak in terms of "a dual crisis" and of "the gravest crisis we have ever faced." The dual crisis is one of leadership and ideology, and both facets focus on Ehrlich. After all, for years they claimed to have the panaceas for Israel's aliments, if only the doctrinaire socialists would let them have part of the action. Well, they got their chance in May 1977. Premier Begin let them boose on the economy, with Ehrlich and his deputy, Yeheskel Flomin, putting Liberal ideas into practice.

RADICAL ECONOMIC moves were closely followed by nagging doubts as to their efficacy. Even leading Liberals are ready to concede that ly because he never followed it up and that his will probably lacked the necessary iron to do so. Some Liberals are even ready to place the hlamc on their ideology, while others counter that the trouble is Ehrlich's leadership. What is un-usual in their situation is the total identification of the Liberal Party with Ehrlich's peformance: and his failure is being made that of his party, a situation that no other party in government has ever encountered in this country. The Liberals are miffed at finding themselves such convenient whipping hoys for the government's failures and are fully aware that attacks are aimed at Ehrlich, by the

Yitzhak Meda'i (above) and Gideon Patt. (Alize Amerbach)

Histadrut for example, when the target is really Begin. The labour federation's leaders have found that Herut trade unionists will join the hunt as long as their beloved leader'e name is never mentioned.

Some Herut MKs who feel that the Liberals have too hig a chunk of the power cake plus lots of juicy plum jobs charge them with crying all the way to the bank, so to speak, for the Liberals Individually have benefitted most from the Likud'e close say that this is largely because they have the people for the jobs, whereas the others do not.

La'am's Yigal Hurvitz, a Herut favourite to judge by his warm: reception at the party convention, is available for the Treasury, but it is highly doubtful whether Begin would seek to upset the delicate internal balance by dislodging Ehrlich. The Finance Minister's friends say he would love to step down, but that would entail an admission of personal failure and damage his party. His critics argue that he could still be dominant politically, and not in the doldrums, if he had had the perspicacity to walk out the first time his cabinet colleagues threw out his hudget estimates entailing expenditure cuts.

To this his friends counter that it is not Ehrlich's fault that Begin has turned ont to be a strong national leader and a weak prime minister presiding over a cabinet of tough baronial ministers. Ehrlich, they say, has had to fight simultaneously on 17 fronts against that number of ministers, with Begin only lately giving him the right kind of backing. He has been made a scapegoat, they claim, and in particular they blame the three toughest ministers -- Weizman, Hammer and Sharon - for foil-ing every Treasury sffort to streamline the state budget.

A nasty reception greeted Ehrlich at the Horut convention, and I wondered whether bc had second thoughts about baving held on for so long as be stood red-faced with anger and embarrassment, stumbling over his words of greeting. Cat-calls and boos rollsd in from the auditorium. His friend, Jewish Agency chairman Arye Dulzin, told a week-end Tei Aviv meeting that he was convinced that Ehrlich could have done extremely well in any other job.

THE LIBERALS are in the desultory threes of internal elections, readying themselves for their convention later this year. It is illuminating to learn that party keymen etill regard Ehrlich as the arch-politician, indeed as their party strong man, with the other three ministers hardly a patch on him. He is a professional and knows how to manipulate others' weaknesses.

When he entered the government, e put Moshe Nissim, the hawkish Minister-withoot-Portfolio, in charge of running the party. Few were as surprised as Ehrlich that Nissim suddenly sprouted ambitions for the No. 1 job; yet it is doubtful whether the son of the former chief rabhi could take over the leadership munications Minleter Yitshak Moda'l. Patt has emerged from Ehrlich's shadow and is quite popular among the party rank-and-file. His return to the ministry where he served as the late Yosef Saphir's aide a decade earlier, is regarded as a homecoming, and he is even as having made a promising start. Moda'i'e campaign againet Elmitch apparently has borne fruit;

he has attracted the disaffected and frustrated in the Liberal camp. Interestingly, as one of the central Liberal politicians explained to me, Moda'i has proven to be a major fac-tor with whom they must reckon. Ehrlich'e declins in popularity has raised that of Moda'l, and his cautionary, if harshly put, words are now being hecded. In Moda'i's favour is his diligence as a minister and his talent as a speaker, yst he tends to halance them hy a too aggressive manner. He has an abrasive way with party membere and his staff and tends to be rather uppish towards others. Patt'e breezy style enhances his popularity but there are those who, wondsr whether he has the necessary iron for the leadership. An indication of where thioge are heading, or rather a demonstration of the einking ship syndroms, is the wholesale dessrtion hy erstwhile Ehrlich loyalists like MKs Yitzhak Berman and Menahem Savidor, with even an Ehrlich creation like Tel.

Aviv Deputy Mayor David Shifman already declaring for Moda'i. As to Deputy Finance Minister Yehezkel Flomin, insiders eay he the fold: demonstrated how to disappear. without a trace though staying visi-hic all the time. If he had stayed an MK out of government office, he ined his reputat 'the Liberal's sconomic whiz-kid. which he earned in the Finance Committee. Since he became Ehrlich's deputy, Flomin has been completely neutralized, it is said. There ars those doubting the wisdom of his decision to break away from the central bloc and run on his own list in party elections with the controversial PR agent David Admon, who is active among the younger leadership. WHAT IS crystal clear is that despite seasonal mutterings from some Liberal chieftains about going alonc, or breaking away from Likud moorings, they are not very eerious about such threats. The dream fostered in some Labour, Liberal and NRP hearts of reviving the historic coalition of Mapai, General Zionists and Misrahi, which enabled Ben-Gurion to stear the Yishuv to national independence and which helped him rule from time to time, can hardly become a reality under the conditions of an entering the 1980s. First of all, the electorate have changed, and the idea of a centre -

Only seven per cent leave the country during their first year in Israel, according to the survey. That figure is a balance between Russians (Iwo per cent leave within one year) and the North Americans (18 per cent leave during that period). J.S.

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, - Too often the ordinary. citizen knows only what be sees and, more often than not, this is not enough to draw a proper conclusion. Mr. Nathan Ginsberg, in his letter of June 12, criticizes the police for committing at least 10 traffic violations and adds that he could have issued 10 citations to these officers.

This reminds me of the time I was a police officer in Texas. I received a radio call for a reported traffic accident with injuries on a side street next to a McDonald restaurant. I turned on my overhead emergency lights and used my siren to clear in-tersections of vehicles. I technically committed five traffic violations to arrive at the scene of the accident. However, my promptness saved the life of one of the drivers involved. I was later informed by the police dispatcher that a concerned citizeo. who observed my actions, wanted to complain that I had violated three red lights, drove excessively over the speed limit and made a prohibited left turn in order to drive into McDonald's to drink coffee. The concerned citizens said "he saw me." YITZHAK BEN-AMI

Sir, - Being that rare bird, the Alaskan Jew, I was very interested to see Israel. One tends to idealize a country and people when one is located in a remote area with very little Jewish life and culture. .

The country is tremendous in the full sense of the word. The friendliness of the people is most pleasing and I am really enjoying my stay here.

When I fly back over the North Pole towards home, I will carry fond memories of Israel and look forward to my next trip. ARLENE KUNZ

Since we are not in a position to carry the burden and cover the great expenditure involved in the renovation of the auditorium, we have approached the original donor, in whose name ft is dedicated, and there are prospects that a further donation will be forthcoming for that purpase in the near future.
